DiscussIT Topic 5: Battle of the Animation Studios

Discuss IT Topic: Over the next couple of years, many design studios will be releasing and rereleasing new films based on previously scene characters and storylines. Star Wars, although it dates back to the 1970's is going back in time in the story, but they are more popular today than ever, even though the story has been gone back and forth numerous times. From Wonder Women, to three different versions of the Hulk, Spider-Man, and Bat-Man, these films keep coming out every year. Why are these films so popular? Are the movie goers not worried about reboots? Could it be the effects and realism of the characters? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

First and foremost, now-a-days the movies that make the most money in the box office are 'nerdy' movies. I'm sure back then that comic book movies weren't really seen as popular and even comic books in general were probably seen as 'nerdy' – same as Star Wars. But today, everyone loves this kind of stuff; so it's no surprise that the movies are making more money now-a-days with new actors and new special effects. Plus, with the new special effects that are used in cinema - studios can bring newer stories and characters into the light and onto the big screen. Besides all that though, obviously, they pump out these movies constantly to make loads of money. The newest Star Wars movie, Rogue One, was set multiple years if not decades before the Force Awakens. They did this to give more time to the other film in production as well as to show a newer story never previously told – all the while making A LOT of money. It all just works out.
